WHAT IS INSANITY?

The Multiplicity of Mental Diseases Instanced.

Insanity Punished Constantly—The Confined and Unconfined Lunatics—Where the Line Should be Drawn.

(New York Graphic.)

Have the "experts" who test insanity and who watch Guiteau so narrowly ever studied their own mental states or conditions with reference to this matter? Would not a proportion of people thoroughly honest with themselves be willing to acknowledge that there have been times when they were half crazy or one-third crazy or one-eighth crazy? How many people ought to be thoroughly confident of perfect mental soundness? Does not every decade show the fallacy of some long held agreeable or disagreeable delusion, which in the past we have believed in and which has influenced our acts and our lives?

Is insanity punishable? Certainly it is. It is punished among us every day. Men are born with extremely intractable tempers, sour tempers, sulky tempers and ugly tempers, who in contact with the world are only as civil as the world compels them to be. At home, fearing little or no check, they maltreat their wives by manner or by fist. They are in various degrees insane and are occasionally punished for their acts.

The patient in the insane asylum is controlled by fear and by authority, and is amenable to it. So are the unconfined patients outside.

A portion of the confined insane have skill in certain directions and use it. They sew, they knit, they work in the garden, and would be able to do much more were proper opportunities afforded them.

Insanity, too, under asylum treatment, is in its main phases made accountable for its acts. Unruly patients are confined or threatened with penalties, and they understand this quite well enough and govern themselves accordingly.

Here the confined and unconfined insane patient meet on common ground, and are amenable to the same corrective influences. One class society can bear to manage with outside of prison walls, and the other it cannot.

May not, then, the limit of unconfined insanity be drawn where society finds it necessary to protect itself from the patient?

Are not thousands born with inherent and inherited mental as well as bodily disease? Are not the two closely allied? Are there not of these deficiencies a thousand degrees and gradations?

One person is born with just sufficient will, judgment, discretion, and general common sense to be barely able to get on in the world. He is termed "simple," "reckless," "a ne'er-do-well," or "half-witted."

Another is born still less possessed of those qualities, cannot get on at all, and is cared for by friends and is placed in an asylum. Another is born with a marked degree of skill or talent in some special calling, but so entirely deficient in common prudence or discretion as to fail to apply his ability properly, and therefore to remain all his life in pauperism or on its verge.

Why not catalogue all these among the manifold shades of insanity? Grant, then, that mental ailments and defects may exist in many forms and degrees; grant that what goes under the current name of "insanity" is but the extreme type of such ailments; grant that like Hamlet's a brilliant mind may become morbidly turned, obscured and diseased in some certain direction while retaining its full powers in others; grant that mental defect may grade all the way from full ability to detect its failings and seek to correct them down to partial insanity and partial lack of control, down still farther to almost complete obscurity and lack of control, down farther yet to total obscurity and lack of control, where the light of reason is completely quenched in idiocy or madness, and it does seem that there was furnished a key to the solution of this problem and something suggesting the future rational basis for the treatment of mental maladies.

Colonel Foreyth, who commands Fort Cummings, N. M., reports that cattle thieves in large numbers are stealing and driving off cattle near Lake Valley and Hillsboro, and that citizens call on him to intercept and capture them, and that regular troops could not be used lawfully. Governor Sheldon telegraphed the Sheriff of Dona Ana county, to endeavor to catch these thieves, and if necessary to call on Colonel Ryerson, commanding a battalion of Territorial militia at Las Cruces, for assistance.

Judge Underhill, attorney of the Central Pacific Railroad, while stopping at Hazel Creek, Shasta county, recently, said there was a deposit of coal on the railroad land in Shasta Valley, and that a ledge of iron ore near has prospect well. If it proves of sufficient value, an iron mine and smelting works may be seen in Shasta Valley within a few years.

A suit in regard to the Wilson patents for cunning means, in which Chicago capital to the amount of $1,000,000 is involved, has been decided by Judge Drummond adversely to the patentees, it being found that the inventions lacked the novelty required to make them valid.

The "down-town store," between Chambers and Reade, on Broadway, of A. T. Stewart & Co., is offered for sale for $2,000,000. Stewart once refused $4,000,000 for it. It has been vacant during the last two years, nobody being willing to shoulder a $150,000 lease.

In all probability the county of San Bernardino will be entirely clear of debt this year. The indebtedness of the county is about $30,000, while at least $30,000 will be due and collected on taxes before the year is out.

THE TEXAS DIVIDERS.

Whenever the subject of admitting new Territories into the Union is canvassed, especially if such Territories give any indication of turning out Republican States, the mass of Democratic organs immediately raise a howl for the division of Texas into a dozen or more commonwealths, claiming that her extensive wastes of desert and her countless herds of cowboys and greasers justify such a change. Since Dakota has had the assurance to tramp on Democratic toes, by an application for admission as a State, Democracy has clothed itself in a new suit of threats and howls and the air is rent with the mutterings of the Texas dividers. Considering that Congress is Republican and that Dakota is a territory of great area and of sufficient population to entitle her to the distinction, the Texas intimidators may as well sit down and rest, until some other territory has the hardihood to ask to be made a State. In the meantime most people will rejoice to see Dakota beam and blossom in all the glory and importance of Statehood.

MR. ROBINSON, ASS.

Representative Robinson evidently thought he was doing something very brilliant when he introduced his little resolution in Congress the other day, declaring the Yorktown salute to the British flag an insult to the patriots of the Revolution. A great many people, however, who are not Congressmen, will think Mr. Robinson a consummate ass for his assurance, and will wonder that an intelligent constituency ever mustered up votes enough to elect such a mutton head to Congress. When England and America are on the most friendly terms, when the two nations are bound together by the strongest bonds of a common origin and common purpose, it certainly is in bad taste for notoriety fiends like the great Robinson to do anything that would serve as a lever to create ill feeling between the two countries. The nation will certainly emphatically veto Mr. Robinson's resolution, and Congress will undoubtedly bury it beneath a crushing majority of sensible and patriotic votes.

The United States Railroad Commissioner in his report to the Secretary of the Interior, says that the near future will witness five railroads in operation between the East and the Pacific Coast. The Commissioner is surely a very sanguine man. He has not probably counted on the possible combinations and consolidations that will cut this grand total of competing roads down to one or two magnificent monopolies.

Mr. Blaine has formally declined to deliver the Garfield eulogy before the Joint Memorial Service of the Senate and the House. There are some people who will consider this an evidence that Mr. Blaine is also making preparations to join the grand army of stalwarts, who are now supposed to control the Government.

Since it has been proved that Guitau forged the Morey letter, some of our exchanges are asking if the assassin was not the man who "hit the lamented Billy Patterson."

It begins to look now as if Guitau would not Guit-out of his little assassination difficulty so easily as he expected when he fired the fatal shot.

The Times will issue another fourteen column supplement next Sunday.

THE WIRE'S WORK.

The Happenings of a Day at Home and Abroad.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SENATE AND HOUSE.

Blaine Will Not Be Eulogist—Two Women Burned to Death—Pacific Coast Trading Meeting—The Guitau Case.

[Associated Press Dispatches.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—In the House, today, the Utah delegate case was postponed until January 10th.

Haskell called up before the House the resolution providing rules for the 46th Congress. After debate the rules of the last House were adopted.

Hawk introduced a bill for the protection of the person of the President. It provides for the punishment by death for an assault to kill the President. If it shall be shown that the assailant was irresponsible at the time of the assault he shall be confined in an asylum for the insane for life. The bill was referred. After the presentation of a number of other bills the House adjourned until Wednesday.

A GOOD SHOWING.

The report of Joseph K. McKammon, Commissioner of Railroads, has been received by the Secretary of the Interior. It says the indications are that within a short time there will be five different routes to the Pacific Coast, where less than a year ago there was but one. He says the railroads will be instrumental in developing the country at a rapid rate. His report shows that capital has been invested in railroads in immense sums, and still the tendency is toward increased developments in that direction. The west and southwest are the great fields for operation.

SENATE MATTERS.

After 15 minutes spent in receiving petitions the Senate went into executive session and unanimously confirmed the nominations of Brewster, Attorney General, and Davis, Assistant Secretary of State.

The Senate Committee on Naval Affairs decided to postpone action on the nomination of Pay Director Walmouth to be Paymaster-General, and other contested navy nominations, until after the holidays.

Hoar presented the same bill as that introduced by Edmunds during the last Congress fixing a day for the meeting of the electoral college, and to regulate the counting of the electoral vote.

BLAINE BACKS OUT.

Ex-Secretary Blaine has declined to deliver the eulogy on the late President Garfield before the House.

CAPITAL CHATTER.

The President received many callers today. Secretary Frelinghuysen took possession of the State Department today.

The President has signed the commission of J. C. Bancroft Davis as Assistant Secretary of State.

Two colored delegations called on the President today, one headed by ex-Marshall Douglas, the other by Prof. Greener.

THE BAY'S BUDGET.

Spring Meeting of the Blood Horse Association—The Chosen Friends.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 19.—The Trustees of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association have fixed on April 25th, 27th and 29th, 1882, to hold its spring meeting. The Association have adopted an earlier date than heretofore to enable the California colts having Eastern engagements to meet them without the hurry which is incident to a date in May. There is also less liability to rain. The programme arranged by the association is a very attractive one and with the number of nominations in the stakes, which have already closed, and the still greater number likely to be named in others, the probabilities are in favor of its being the best meeting of the series. All the races except those which have already closed, will be governed by the schedule of weights adopted at the last annual meeting of the Association, which are same as those of American Jockey Club Saratoga Association, Coney Island Jockey Club and at Long Branch.

CHOSEN FRIEND OFFICERS.

The Grand Council of the Independent Order of Chosen Friends of the Pacific Coast has organized with the following officers: T. M. Cook, Grand Counselor; H. Griffin, Grand Vice Counselor; Geo. J. This property is located in Empire District, thirty miles from this city and seven miles from Pantano station on the Southern Pacific. The mine is opened up to a depth of three hundred feet and has over four thousand tons of ore on the dumps and enough in sight to run a twenty-stamp mill for two years. The mine is owned by a New York party. N. R. Vall, of Los Angeles, is Superintendent.

THE ASSASSIN'S TRIAL.

Death of a Jurymen's Wife—Guitau Visited by Mrs. Dunmire.

[Associated Press Dispatches.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The Criminal Court opened at 11 o'clock, and Guitau was escorted to his seat by the officers. The announcement was immediately made of the death of the wife of jurymen Hobbs and the court adjourned until Wednesday.

SPOILING EVERYTHING.

Guitau, when he was leaving the court room today, stopped at the District Attorney's desk and said: "Corkhill, I have had a model taken of my head for a bust. I will be a great man yet, Corkhill, if you will let me alone."

Scoville is reported as saying that he thinks Guitau is spoiling his case as far as he can. Guitau does not seem to be able to see what is to come from the questions of Scoville to witnesses, and when Scoville lays the foundation for contradicting witnesses Guitau does positive injury to himself and spoils the whole thing by correcting witnesses on the spot and thus putting them on the stand. This has been the case in regard to the witness Shaw, for example. Scoville says in reference to Mrs. Dunmire that he can prove that she said to Dr. Bowker of New York, at the time of her divorce, that "I thought she ought to remain with Guitau, as she believed he was insane and needed some one to care for him."

THE ASSASSIN'S WIFE.

Guitau had his usual number of Sunday callers. He is now dependent when not surrounded by a crowd. Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Dunmire, his former wife, accompanied by her son and daughter, called upon him to say good-bye. This unexpected visit rather unstrung the prisoner, and for an instant he hung his head, but brightening up suddenly, he walked forward, took her hand and said he was pleased to see her. She was visibly affected as she said: "Charlie, I am sorry to find you in this condition." "Oh, don't mind that," replied the prisoner. "I am sorry that the wheel is evidently referring to District Attorney Corkhill," brought you here; but he was disappointed in his purpose. I did nothing, you see, to embarrass you."

FAREWELL, CHARLIE.

"I have called to say good-bye, Charlie," Mrs. Dunmire responded, evidently desirous of ending the interview. "For I may never see you again," Guitau was not satisfied, however, to let the interview there, and as if to prolong it, turned towards the lady's little girl and asked how old she was, adding, as a peculiar look passed over his face and his thin lips twitched nervously, "Anna, I can wish you no harm. I hope your life may be prosperous and happy." Mr. Dunmire walked over to Guitau and said: "Guitau, I must bid you farewell as we may never meet again." Guitau took his proffered hand but turned his head away, and it was evident that he was impressed with the truth of his visitor's remark. Without waiting for a reply Mr. Dunmire added: "I've to say good-bye, now, for I hope we will be off for Leadville again by Monday. Its too close around here for me." "It's too close hereabouts for me, also," broke in the prisoner, with a ghastly smile. "I wish I was a laborer out at Leadville." The Dunmires then separated from him.

SEGAR FOR SCOVILLE.

A mysterious box, supposed to be an infernal machine, was received yesterday from Michigan, directed to Guitau's counsel. Scoville opened the box, which was found to contain three dollars in ten cent pieces, collected by an old lady for his benefit. A plaster cast was made today of Guitau's head by Clark Mills, assisted by his son.

A Mad Major.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Last Friday Mrs. Malvina Major and her infant child died within a few hours of each other. Her husband, Thomas Major, remarked at the time: "I will be buried with them," and although closely watched by his brother, escaped long enough to buy some poison, which he took Saturday night and died in great agony yesterday.

THE CHRISTIAN'S DEBT.

What Mankind Owes to the Past and Present.

A Good Sermon by Rev. Mr. Dorsey—"I Am Debtor to the Greek and the Barbarian to the Wise and the Unwise."

The Rev. Mr. Dorsey delivered a very interesting discourse at the Spring Street Congregational church Sunday morning. The audience was large and seemed pleased with the speaker's views. Mr. Dorsey is a young man of much promise and might be classed among the best pulpits orators in the city. He took for his subject the "debtor," his text being Romans 1: 14: "I am debtor to the Greek and the barbarian, to the wise and the unwise."

Mr. Dorsey began by saying that Paul was a debtor to men, and his whole life was consumed in the endeavor to discharge that obligation. He despised the national egotism of his people and he ignored all distinctions of class. To him there was no Jew nor Gentile, no Greek nor Barbarian, no bond nor free. All men were suffering under sin, and hence, as a servant of the Christ who tasted death for every man, Paul was under obligations to all the world. The speaker then said that his theme was: the Christian a debtor to men. The grounds of that obligation were: First the Christian is a debtor because of

BENEFITS RECEIVED.

No man is anything in this world solely or chiefly because of his own exertions. He is the outcome of a long past. We are indebted for by far the greater number of the blessings we enjoy to those toilers in the past, who, through tears and sweat and blood, wrought them out. The blessings of religious freedom which we prize so highly is ours to enjoy, not because of anything we have done to purchase them, but because in other days saints prayed, heroes bled and martyrs suffered, to give them to the world. The sighs, the tears, the groans of suffering that have ascended from a million dying heroes, the blood that has stained the soil of a thousand battlefields, tell in what a manner and at what a cost the blessings of civil liberty have been secured to us. All that have gone before us have toiled and we are helped by the fruits of their toil. "If I can see farther and wider than other men," said Sir Isaac Newton, "it is because I stand on Kepler's shoulders." And so if the men of this generation can see farther in every direction, if they are richer, wiser, better, happier, it is chiefly owing to the fact that they stand on the shoulders of the past. "We are the heirs of all the ages in the foremost files of time." The milk of human kindness never ran in so broad and rich a stream as now. The range of knowledge was never so wide; the means of comfort and happiness never so common to all. All that the world has ever gained in wisdom, goodness, greatness, is ours to enjoy and to improve. As we have received more from the past than any who have gone before us, so we are under

GREAT OBLIGATIONS.

Than any who have preceded us. And now this debt must be discharged. It is not Christian to owe and not make an honest effort to pay. How shall he do this? He cannot go back to the men who have toiled for us. But this debt does not absolve us from the obligation. Their children are with us, and by the law of Christ, as well as the law of the land, the children are heirs to the dues of the parents when the parents are not. Christian men then of every calling and profession actually owe to the men of today a debt for benefits received from the past—a debt from which neither God nor man can release them. Secondly: The Christian is a debtor to men because of what he owes his divine Lord and Saviour. The debt which every Christian owes to Christ is infinite in its magnitude. He owes to Christ the debt to Christ? Plainly by loving Him in return for what He has done for us. How are we to manifest that love? Largely by laboring for those for whom Christ suffered and died. To the righteous He says: "As often as ye did unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye did unto Me." Doing for others, loving others, He regards as doing for Himself. Any amount of scriptural proof may be produced to show that the debt which the Christian owes to his Lord is to be discharged to his fellow men. If this is so, how great is our obligation to our fellow men! How diligent should be our labor in their behalf! If this is so, then we must meet we behold as it were, the face of Jesus Christ pleading with us to pay the debt we owe. If this is so, then the orphan and the friendless, the poor and the outcast, the men who are cursed by sin of any kind, have claims upon us. We actually owe them, and in so far as we fail to discharge the debt we are recreant to our obligations, ungrateful to our Lord. Brethren, what are we doing to discharge our debts?

Whisky Pets Punished.

Colonel Antonio and H. S. Rodman are two whisky pets from Bitter Creek. Notwithstanding the temperance folk's threats against drunks, these two birds got too much of the juice last Sunday. They appeared before his honor, the terrible Judge, yesterday and got the regular dose. They were around with the band most of the day and said they didn't understand how they got "full."

The Fire Bell.

About 3:30 yesterday morning the rear portion of the Chinese laundry at 203 Main street caught fire from a barrel containing hot ashes. The fire company were promptly at hand a few moments after the alarm had been sounded. The flames were quickly extinguished, after doing but little damage. The property was owned by Mr. Vignolia.

A Bad Man Bagged.

John Cabbins, one of the bad men of Los Angeles, was gobbled up by officer Carpenter last night for using his fists without provocation. He was making things exciting for Los Angeles street when the officer came along and put a stop to his little fun. The terrible Judge will probably put the finishing touches on his case to-day.

The Weather Report.

Observations taken by the U. S. Army Signal Service at 8 o'clock last night are as follows: Barometer, 30.26; Thermometer, 46.44; Wind NW.—11 miles per hour; foggy; Maximum thermometer, 66; Minimum thermometer, 46.

The Rose street Mission Sunday School will give a concert this evening at the Fort Street M. E. Church. Hon. G. Wiley Wells is at the back of it and will see that the entertainment is first-class. The advertisement appears elsewhere.

EPHRAIM'S RUSE.

A Darkey's Original Method of Stopping a Runaway Horse.

"Ephraim, Sir," took a horse back ride last Sunday. Ephraim is a gentleman from Africa. He has not been in the habit of straddling that noble animal, the horse. But he is fond of the exercise and never loses an opportunity of taking a jaunt. Sunday he went to one of the first-class stables of this place, examined every horse but didn't seem to be satisfied.

"See here, boss, I've got to hab a horse back ride 'fo' my health, but you've got to gib me one as gentle as a six hour old baby. If you've got one what Prof. Sample's been ridin', jus' trot 'em out."

"We've got one the Prof.'s been drivin', and I guess he'll do," said the livery man, as he winked at a fly on the wall three times and saddled up a first-class Mexican bronco.

The darkey started on his pleasure trip. Everything went swimmingly until the Mustang cast his left optic back and got a good look at the black face in the saddle. This was too much for a blooded California horse.

He surveyed the ground, but he didn't see a good hard place to deposit his obnoxious burden. Bringing his horse-sense into play he lit out at full speed for a rocky place he had seen on some of his rambles. The negro didn't know what was up. He pulled on the reins; hollowed "stop, stop," but the horse increased his speed. A few yards ahead Ephraim espied a huge tree, with a limb reaching out into the street. He reasoned that, if he could catch the limb, he could hold on and stop the Mustang. When they reached the tree the darkey stopped suddenly in a very forcible manner. His plan didn't work as he expected it would. He is now looking for that horse, and swears that he will not get on another horse as long as he lives.

ABOUT TOWN.

At Good Templar Hall last Sunday afternoon "What is the duty of a Spiritualist?" was discussed. J. H. Ruder and others held forth. There was a very good turn out.

The Riverside saloons all close up Sundays now, and this fact may explain the presence of that enterprising newspaper, the Los Angeles Free Press, in this city over Sunday.

The commencement exercises of the first term of the University of Southern California will take place to-day at 2 p. m. The programme will consist of declamations, musical selections, etc.

The S. P. R. R. are making some very useful improvements at this depot. They are filling up and grading the ground in front of the Pacific hotel. During the winter season heretofore it has been a perfect mud-hole.

Mr. S. K. Sewall of San Gabriel returned last Friday from a three month's jaunt in the east. He visited points in New York, New Hampshire and Massachusetts, but he says there is no place like Southern California for him.

Elder J. W. Webb, Grand Lecturer of the I. O. O. F. of California, is doing Southern California. He lectured at Westminster last Saturday and Sunday, and will talk temperance to the Anahiemers to-morrow and next day.

BADLY BURNED.

A Heartrending Accident in the Marble Block.

The Skirts of Mrs. Eaton Caught Fire and the Poor Woman is Almost Reduced to Death—A Horrible Casualty.

About 7:30 yesterday morning the sad and true saying that if a woman's clothing catches fire she will run into the arms of death, was again illustrated. It seems that Mrs. Eaton, the wife of the Pico House barkeeper, was dressing one of her little ones in her rooms at the marble front block, No. 54 Main street, when she was sitting very near the fire place at the time, and in getting up her dress, which was of light material, passed near the grate and caught fire.

She immediately took fright and started for the hallway. When she reached the hall no one was near to stop her mad flight and she frantically ran down a long flight of stairs to the street and then into Nolte's tailor shop. By the time she reached the store her clothing was one mass of flames. Lonis Pfeifferberger, one of the men in the store, caught her as she entered the door and threw her down. The men then hurriedly brought woolen goods and cloths and buried her beneath their close folds.

SMOTHERING THE FIRE.

In a few moments. But not until the poor woman was burned in a most frightful manner from her feet to her waist. She projected her face and hands, and her body was shielded by her corset, or she would have been burned to death. As it was she will probably never recover. Dr. Hannon, the county physician, was called in and did all in his power to relieve the sufferer. Her groans were perfectly heart-rending while the doctor was dressing her wounds. Mr. Pfeifferberger's hands were badly burned in trying to put out the flames. He also destroyed about $200 worth of goods. At midnight Mrs. Eaton was resting as easily as could be expected and considered out of danger.

Band of Hope Officials.

A SOUTHERN TRAMP.

He Knocks His Partner into Pie for Spitting in his Face.

"Your honor, I'm a Southern gentleman, sir; and when my partner, sir, J. L. Stanton, sir, standing before this court, sir, spit in my face, sir, I knocked him down, sir; yes, sir, as any Southern gentleman would do, sir."

"That is a d—d lie, Judge; when I spit in his face I wouldn't have blamed him for knocking me down once, but he knocked me down as fast as I could get up, for more than an hour."

This was the way two gentlemen of the tramp order testified before the city criminal judge yesterday.

Sunday evening officer Carpenter was patrolling Los Angeles street he discovered the Southern gentleman and his friend having a prize fight without the ring, consequently they were lodged in the county hotel to await trial. The judge heard both sides and graciously gave them both twelve days in the chain gang.
